

After reading a letter written by Fred Roen, I bought an Official Baseball Guide and, using the charts in ASD, rated the International League (AAA) for Negamco Baseball. In the categories of speed and fielding, I figured out my own rating chart.

In real life, Juan Beniquez was the batting champ and Jim Fuller of Rochester in homers. In a runaway, Dick Pole won the ERA race with 2.03 to his closest competitor's 2.85. Scott Nichol, 118 Longue Vue Dr., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15228.

ONE-ON-ONE CHAMPIONSHIP

Dear Sir: Recently received the Oct.-Nov. edition of ASD. I thought it was a fine issue and also I enjoyed seeing my letter in it despite the fact you misspelled my name. In my letter I was somewhat critical of ASD. However, your decision to print ASD bi-monthly seems to be paying dividends as your last three issues have been excellent.

Enclosed are the results of my 1973 PTG Basketball NBA-ABA One-On-One Championship. As you all know, I got the idea from the NBA Players Association—(hope they don't ask for royalties). I used the same rules, the 20-point win by four scoring method, no shooting free throws until the fourth foul is committed, etc. I altered PTG's rebound method so that the defensive player would get most rebounds regardless of ratings. Offensive rebounds were possible, though, and rebound ratings were a factor.

I knew the journey was going to be an unpredictable one when Herm Gilliam upset Hawk teammate Pete Maravich in the first match. Other highlights:

Connie Hawkins defeating Mel Daniels 20-4 for the greatest margin of victory in a match; George Thompson defeating Sidney
