Astro Highlights: The first team with three straight seasons of 100 victories or more since the 2004 Yankees...First time they ended a season with the best record in baseball...Third straight AL West division title...Franchise record 23 runs in one game against the Orioles August 10th...Justin Verlander struck out the 3,000th batter of his career and 300th of the season September 28th...On September 1st at Toronto, Verlander tossed his THIRD career no-hitter during which he struck out 14 and allowed only one baserunner via a walk in the first inning...The Astros led the A. L. with a .274 batting average and blasted 288 home runs, third most in the league. MVP-candidate Alex Bregman led the team with 41 homers, 112 RBI, and 122 runs scored. His Gold Glove-style work at third base and shortstop also make him a prime contender. George Springer hit 39 home runs; Yuli Gurriel and Jose Altuve both clubbed 31 jacks. Michael Brantley had the most base hits (179)...The pitching corps was second in the A. L. with a 3.66 ERA. Verlander posted a 21-6 W/L record while Gerrit Cole furnished a Cy Young-type season as well with 20 wins and a major league-high 326 strikeouts. Reliever Josh James punched out 100 batters...Houston began its march to its fourth World Series after escaping with a 3-2 ALDS victory over Tampa Bay and a 4-2 defeat of the Yankees in the ALCS...The highly-favored Astros won three games of the Fall Classic in Nationals Park, but the Washington ballclub won FOUR in Houston to take home the World Series crown, the first time this scenario came to fruition in major league history.
