Twenty-three year old Gary Carter led the ball club with 31 home runs. On April 20th, he hit three home runs in the same game. Former Cincinnati Red Tony Perez socked 19 dingers and led the team in RBI (91). Ellis Valentine, only 22 years of age, bashed 25 homers, drove in seventy-six, and stroked 28 doubles. His "rocket arm" made many a base runner think twice about taking an extra base. Another solid veteran and former Phillie, Dave Cash, had team highs in base hits (188), runs scored (91), and doubles (42). His leadership was a boon to the team. Andre Dawson, 22, added 19 home runs and 65 RBI. Carter finished second with 84 runs driven in. For the year, the Expos hit .260 and were fifth in the N.L. in home runs (138). They led the league with 294 doubles...Ace Steve Rogers (17 wins, 206 strikeouts, 17 complete games, and four shutouts) led the pitching staff. Spot starter Don Stanhouse won ten ballgames. Jackie Brown finished 9-12 in wins/losses and completed six games. The pitching staff turned in a 4.01 ERA...Les Expos' first season playing in "Stade Olympique." Over 57,000 turned out for the first home game, a loss to the Phillies. Ellis Valentine hit the first Expos home run in their new playpen. For the next few years the running lanes from the '76 Summer Olympic Games could still partially be seen in small areas not covered by artificial turf. The Expos finished 26 games behind the NL East champion Phillies and won seven of the eighteen games in the season series...At the All Star break, Montreal was twelve games out of first place, fifth in the standings, and held a record of 42-47.
