The Reds were an also-ran in '68 hovering around the .500 mark practically all the way through and finishing the year 14 games behind the pennant-winning Cardinals. Cincinnati won seven of the eighteen regular season meetings with the Cards...The ball club's .273 batting average was the best in the N. L.; their 1,573 base hits and 690 runs scored also headlined the league. They placed third in home runs (106). Pete Rose led the big leagues in batting average while his enigmatic teammate, Alex Johnson, finished fourth. Rose also tied the Braves Felipe Alou for the most base hits (210) in the majors while Rose (42) and Johnson (32) ended the season among the top ten in doubles. The twenty-seven-year-old Rose scored the most runs on the Reds (94). Lee May (80 RBI) was the home run leader with twenty-two; Tony Perez produced 18 homers and led the team in RBI (92). The N. L. Rookie of the Year, twenty-year-old Johnny Lee Bench, popped 15 dingers to go with 40 doubles and 82 RBI. He also was awarded his first of ten career Gold Gloves...Fireballing Jim Maloney was the biggest winner on the pitching staff (16), racked up the most strikeouts (181), and completed the most games (8) and shutouts (5). Lefty Gerry Arrigo (140 K's) won twelve games and George Culver contributed eleven. The staff ERA was tenth in the league (3.56)...The Redlegs welcomed just over 733,000 baseball fans to Crosley Field with its quirky terraced outfield.
