Bryce Harper had "a season to remember" in '15: National League MVP, 42 home runs and 118 runs scored--the latter two figures league leaders. Harper led the Nats with 99 RBI, 172 base hits, and 38 doubles...Max Scherzer no-hit the Pirates at Nationals Park, June 20th. The only batter to reach base was a hit batsman (Jose Tabata). The question was raised whether Tabata had actually been hit by the pitch, but Scherzer, surprisingly, never complained about the call. Scherzer's fourteen wins and 276 strikeouts led the pitching staff...The Nats did not qualify for the post-season after being heavy favorites to go as far as the World Series...Harper and Jonathan Papelbon got into a nasty dugout scuffle late in the season after Papelbon confronted Harper at the top step of the dugout following an out by Harper. Papelbon felt Harper had "dogged it" for not running with a sense of urgency on a pop fly caught for an out by the Phillies...The Nats finished seven games in back of the NL East champion, Mets, and 8-11 in the season series... Ian Desmond was second on the ball club with 19 home runs and Ryan Zimmerman (16 homers) was second with 73 runs batted in. Team stats: .251 batting average, 177 home runs, and an ERA of 3.62.
