This fabulous Orioles club featured THREE 20-game winners: Palmer, McNally, and Cuellar. The O's won 19 of their last 22 games of the season. "The Birds" clobbered the Reds in the 1970 World Series, four games to one, with Brooks Robinson playing so well in the field he seemed unconscious. NOTHING got past him, ask Lee May! Brooks was named the World Series Most Valuable Player.

On a sobering note, centerfielder Paul Blair was hit in the face with a pitch in a game against the Angels in Anaheim on May 31st. He returned to the line-up after three weeks and played well, but many say he was never the same hitter for the remainder of his career which continued until 1980...

"Boog" Powell led the Orioles in homers (35) and runs batted in (114). The big red-head was the recipient of the American League's MVP Award. Frank Robinson smacked 25 home runs and drove in seventy-eight. Brooks Robinson was second on the team with 94 RBI. He hit 18 dingers and topped the O's with 168 base hits. Don Buford scored a team high 99 runs for the season. Youngster Merv Rettenmund showed he belonged on this elite team after hitting 18 homers and knocking in fifty-eight. He batted well over .300 for the year. The Orioles led the A. L. in runs scored (792) and were third in the league with a .257 batting average as well as 179 home runs...Mike Cuellar and Dave McNally EACH won 24 games. Jim Palmer won twenty and led the pitching staff with 199 strikeouts and five shutouts. Cuellar completed 21 games to lead the hurlers while McNally completed sixteen. The O's staff completed sixty games to lead the league. They were also tops in ERA (3.15) and allowed the fewest runs (574)...Baltimore swept the season series with Kansas City (12-0) and lost but ONE series to AL West Champion, Minnesota, 7-5. The Birds swept the Twins in the ALCS, 3-0. They were winners of eleven of eighteen games versus second place New York.
