The Red Sox '06 season could be magnified to these key points: 1) A five game sweep by the Yankees August 18-21; 2) the team's poor overall record in August of 9-21 (a mediocre 13-14 in September as well); and 3) bad, untimely injuries to several key players--Jason Varitek, Manny Ramirez, closer Jonathan Papelbon, and starter Jon Lester. David Ortiz clobbered 54 homers and knocked in 137 runs. Ramirez would play in 130 games, sock 35 home runs, and drive in one hundred two. Mike Lowell added 20 dingers while Mark Loretta led the ball club with 181 hits. Kevin Youkilis crossed the plate 100 times. For the season, the Bosox hit .269 and 192 homers (sixth in the A.L.)...The pitching staff's ERA was 4.83, eleventh in the league...Josh Beckett led the pitching staff with a 16-11 record. Curt Schilling was 15-7 with a staff leading 183 strikeouts. Knuckleballer Tim Wakefield and Lester both won seven ball games. Papelbon whiffed 75 batters...Boston finished eleven games in back of New York.
