This may have been the BEST of a string of great Orioles ball clubs. The '71 Birds featured FOUR (4), yep, four 20-game winners: Dave McNally (21), Mike Cuellar, Jim Palmer, and Pat Dobson each with 20 victories. The Orioles matched the 1920 White Sox as the only two teams in major league history (as of 2016) to have that many pitchers with twenty wins or more on their respective staffs in the same season...

Back up catcher/pinch hitter Clay Dalrymple suffered a broken ankle in a game against the Senators at Washington in 1970 which pretty much ended his career. After turning down reassignment to Triple A after the '71 season, he chose to retire to tend to his wife who had been diagnosed with cancer. He is the ONLY player to get a hit off Nolan Ryan in a World Series game--Game Three against the Mets in 1969...

Frank Robinson led the O's with 28 homers and 99 RBI. "Boog" Powell was second with his 22 dingers and 92 runs batted in. Brooks Robinson led the team in hits (160) to go with 20 home runs and 92 RBI of his own. The switch-hitting Don Buford socked 18 round-trippers and topped the ball club by crossing the plate 99 times. Davey Johnson added 18 circuit clouts...McNally led the pitching staff in wins while Dobson was tops in strikeouts (187). Dobson also pitched 18 complete games. Cuellar led the staff with 21 complete games and tied Dobson with four shutouts. Jim Palmer had twenty complete games and 184 strikeouts. The staff ERA of 2.99 was the best in the American League. On offense, The Birds' 742 runs scored and .261 team batting average led the league as well. They hit 158 homers...After disposing of the Oakland A's three games to none in the ALCS, the Orioles and Pittsburgh Pirates met in a World Series of seven games. After the first five, the Bucs led, 3-2, with the final two in Baltimore. Steve Blass used his heart and soul and a lot of intestinal fortitude to win Game Seven for the Pirates. The Orioles Frank Robinson hit two home runs and .280 at the plate. Brooks Robinson hit .318 in the Series.
