The 1967 American League pennant race was an exciting campaign with the Angels and four other teams--Twins, White Sox, Tigers, and Red Sox--battling for the top five positions. The Halos won 20 games in June, 17 in July, and 17 in September but came no closer than six games to first place...After the '66 season, the ball club acquired two sluggers in Don Mincher and Jimmie Hall to give the Angels more sock at the plate. Mincher led the team with 25 homers, 76 RBI, and 81 runs scored. Hall hit sixteen home runs and drove home fifty-five. Former "bonus baby" Rick Reichardt finally came through in a big way after slugging 17 homers and driving in sixty-nine. All Star Jim Fregosi, the face of the franchise, led the Angels with 171 base hits and was awarded with his first Gold Glove trophy. For the year, the ball club hit .238 and 114 home runs...The pitching corps offered three twelve-game winners: Jim McGlothlin, Rickey Clark, and reliever "Minnie" Rojas. George Brunet won eleven ball games. McGlothlin finished tied with five other pitchers with a major league-leading six shutouts. Rojas led the A. L. and was second in the majors with 27 saves. The staff also topped the league in saves (46) but were third in ERA, a spiffy 3.19.
