The Reds solely held the top-spot of the National League from April 23rd through June 18th. During that string of 62 days, they compiled a 32-22 record. Their lead was relinquished the next day after a 6-3 loss at San Francisco and they would not touch first again, completing the campaign at 47-50. In head-to-head play against the ballclubs finishing above them in the final standings, the Reds posted a 19-35 mark for the year. They dominated the bottom three teams (Dodgers, Astros, Mets) by a 35-19 margin...Twenty-five-year-old Tony Perez hit the most homers (26) and drove home the most runs (102). The club's everyday-playing veteran since 1959, Vada Pinson, 28, stroked 187 base hits and crossed home plate 90 times, both team-highs. He was second with 18 jacks. A .248 team batting average and 109 home runs both ranked them fifth in the N. L....The pitching staff ranked second in the league with a 3.07 ERA and was the league-leader with 1,065 strikeouts and 15 shutouts. Milt Pappas earned the most wins (16) while fellow starters Jim Maloney, Mel Queen, and Sammy Ellis combined for 37 more...Two youngsters and former high draft picks (one #1 in 1966, the other #2 in 1965, respectively) made their big league debuts as teenagers. The first is flame-throwing Gary Nolan, 19, who won April 15th going 7.3 innings against the Astros. He allowed six hits, two walks, and three earned runs while striking out eight during a 7-3 victory at Crosley Field before just over 4700 fans. For the season, Nolan was 14-8 in W/L and topped the staff with 206 K's, 8 complete games (tied with Ellis), and 5 shutouts...Number Two is Johnny Lee Bench, 19, who joined the big club August 28th batting zero for three versus the Phillies in a night game at Cincinnati in front of just over 9500. While playing 26 games, Bench hit one homer and drove in six. He also previewed his "rocket" arm, gunning down five opposing base stealers out of ten. Bench's first career homer was a three-run shot off the Braves' Jim Britton, September 20th, with the Reds down 4-3 in the sixth at Atlanta.
