An uninspiring start to the season, including a ten-game losing streak in June, essentially doomed Jeff Torborg's time as the Indians manager, a position he had been selected for following the firing of Frank Robinson in June 1977. The Tribe was in sixth place of the AL East at the All Star break with a 42-48 record and 17-game deficit from first. That was not in Torborg's favor either. Cleveland brass pulled the plug on the his regime and installed third base coach Dave Garcia as the new skipper following a doubleheader loss to Milwaukee at Memorial Stadium, July 22nd. Beginning with Garcia's first game on the top step of the dugout, the Indians immediately went on the warpath with a ten-game winning skein from July 23rd through the 31st. Until the end of the season, Cleveland hovered around the .500 mark. Torborg's managerial record was 43-52, Garcia's 38-28. Garcia, a former Angels field commander, would manage the Indians through 1982...The ballclub finished the year with three 20-plus home runs hitters: the potent Andre Thornton (26); 33-year-old Bobby Bonds (25); and the steady if unspectacular Toby Harrah (20). That trio also led the team in runs batted in, Thornton's 93 pacing the offense. Cliff Johnson, aka "Heathcliff," added 18 jacks and 61 RBI. The team was twelfth in the league in batting average (.258) and wound up eighth in home runs (138)...Lefty Rick Waits was a 16-game winner to lead the pitching staff while veteran Rick Wise won 15 and tied with closer Sid Monge for the staff high in strikeouts (108). Monge also won 12 contests working exclusively out of the bullpen. The staff's ERA ended the season at 4.57.
