The 2020 season, seriously curtailed by the COVID-19 pandemic, was not a fair sampling to assess the ball club under new manager Mike Matheny. The 60-game schedule could almost be labeled as "extended Spring Training." The Royals, once again, tried to put puzzle pieces together to create a contender. Elite catcher Salvador Perez was welcomed back after missing all of the 2019 season following knee surgery. He led the team with 11 homers and was second to former Phillie Maikel Franco with 32 RBI. Franco drove home 38. Twenty-four-year-old Adalberto Mondesi was the major league leader in stolen bases. The pitching staff showed some encouraging signs. Brad Keller, 24, led the hurlers with five wins. Brady Singer, 23, won four ballgames and led the staff with 61 strikeouts. Old reliable Danny Duffy added four wins and tallied 57 K's. The staff ERA (4.30) finished sixth in the A.L. Alex Gordon, who donned only a Royals uniform for 14 years, retired after the season. Lifetime, he hit .257, 190 homers and collected 749 RBI. In 2020, he took home his 8th Gold Glove.
