The COVID-19 pandemic tore into any plans the Rangers had of contending in the AL West as well as enjoying their new ballyard, Globe Life Field, for a full 81-game home slate. They defeated the Colorado Rockies, 1-0, in the opening game of the season and their first regular season contest in their new digs, July 24th. The Rangers fell into last place, September 5th, remaining there until the end of the projected 60-game schedule...Their offensive numbers reflected league ranking after the franchise's first year in Texas in 1972. Their .217 team BA was last in the league along with runs scored and team OPS. Two vital members of the offense, Rougned Odor and Joey Gallo, both hit below .200 for the season, but still led the ball club with 10 homers apiece. Odor was first in RBI (30); Gallo second (26)...Lance Lynn became the #1 starter after the trade of Mike Minor to Oakland. Lynn won six games and struck out 89 to lead the staff. Despite missing practically the entire 2019 season with a broken arm/abdominal muscle ailments, former Indians ace Corey Kluber was signed as a free agent but lasted only one inning in one start before returning to the injured list with a bum shoulder. The six prime starters were a combined 10-27 (W/L) with a 5.12 ERA. The Rangers fortunes can only go UP from here.
