Andrew Benintendi was among major league leaders in hitting when he was swapped to the Yankees at the trade deadline for three minor leaguers. He left with three homers, 39 RBI, and his excellent defensive assets. Rookie Bobby Witt (4th in voting for ROY) split time between short and third base while resoundingly finishing second on the ballclub with 20 jacks and leading the team with 80 RBI. His stolen base total was in the top five in the majors for the year. The Royals "quarterback" behind the plate, Salvador Perez, now 32 years of age, played only 77 games as the backstop, the rest as designated hitter. His 23 home runs led the ballclub. He rang up 76 RBI...The mound corps finished with the worst ERA in the A. L. (4.70). Brady Singer won the most ballgames (10), struck out the most batters (150), and posted the lowest earned run average of the starters (3.23)...Manager Mike Matheny was let go after his third season as Royals skipper with a record of 165-219 (.430). None of his teams qualified for the playoffs...Rookie Nick Pratto's last name is pronounced praw-toh. Another first-year player, Vinnie Pasquantino, 24, surprised with 10 home runs and 26 RBI.
