Over the years owner Arte Moreno has spent a fortune to acquire the right mix of ballplayers to win a World Series Championship. Long-time Angel, skipper Joe Maddon, couldn't get the job done, leading to his dismissal, June 7th, with the ballclub buried in a consecutive 12-game losing streak. The team's record at the time was 27-29, ending for all practicality post-season hopes. Shohei Ohtani finished second in A. L. MVP tallies after ending the campaign with 34 homers, 95 RBI, a 15-9 won/loss mark on the pitching mound and 219 strikeouts. Shortened seasons from Mike Trout and Anthony Rendon did much to drown playoff dreams, too. Trout blasted 40 home runs in 438 at bats over 119 games played. He knocked in 80 runs. Meanwhile, Rendon took the field for only 47 contests, contributing a meager 5 jacks and 24 RBI. The Angels hit .233, 12th in the league. Reid Detmers threw a no-hitter, May 10th, at Anaheim, against Tampa Bay. He struck out two and walked one batter. The final score was 12-0 as well as the 12th no-no in franchise history.
