The Jays changed managers on July 13th when Charlie Montoyo--who HAD brought the ballclub back from the doldrums of the AL East--was sacrificed for bench coach John Schneider. The team immediately responded to the new field boss. The Blue Jays hung around the top two or three rungs of the division, but at the All Star break, they were in third place, 14 ½ games out of first. Schneider's flock played sharp .621 baseball (46-28), well enough to gain the first Wild Card for the playoffs. The season ended in disappointing fashion after the Seattle Mariners eliminated the Jays at Rogers Centre, 2-0, in a best-of-three Wild Card series...Vladimir Guerrero, Jr. was the team MVP as he produced a monster season with 32 jacks and 97 RBI. Matt Chapman, George Springer, Teoscar Hernandez, and Bo Bichette all hit between 24 and 27 home runs, respectively, to inflate the ballclub's season total to 200, third most in the A. L. The Jays line-up posted the highest BA (.264), OBP (.329), slugging percentage (.431), and OPS (.760) of the league...The pitching was tough to crack, too. Alek Manoah, 24, won 16 games and struck out 180 batters to go with a .992 WHIP. Kevin Gausman (205 K's) and Jose Berrios both won 12 ballgames. Jordan Romano, previously a starter in the minors, finished tied for fourth in the majors in saves. Staff ERA: 3.87 (7th A. L.)
