It was no surprise, again, when the Reds front office unloaded core players through trade or release OR allowed free agents to walk to other towns to pair down player salaries--and getting little of value in return. They won only three of their first 25 games...The starting staff held three rookies: Hunter Greene, Graham Ashcraft, and Nick Lodolo--none over the age of 24. They took their lumps. Greene, a former #1 draft pick, struck out 164 batters to lead the mound corps. Alexis Diaz, brother of the Mets closer Edwin, demonstrated he possibly could fill that job for the Reds...Prior to being traded to the Padres, Brandon Drury ultimately would lead the team in home runs (20). Super utility-man Kyle Farmer had the most RBI (78) and hit 14 homers...Greene and Art Warren pitched a combined "unofficial" no-hitter against the Pirates at Pittsburgh, May 15th. However, the Reds LOST the game, 1-0. Greene, the starter, struck out nine Buccos then walked two batters in the bottom of the eighth before Art Warren came on in relief and walked the bases full. Warren yielded a fielder's choice RBI ground-out, scoring the winning run. It was the sixth such contest in MLB history and "unofficial" because Reds pitchers did not pitch nine innings.
