Saying "Goodbye" to "Miggy:" At forty-years old, Miguel Cabrera, who spent 16 seasons of his 21-year career in Detroit (a surefire member of the baseball HOF when eligible) concluded his final romp with four home runs before retiring. With true class, "Miggy" said "sayonara" with 511 career homers; 3,174 base hits, 1,881 RBI; and a .306 lifetime average. As he was affectionately lauded around the major leagues, his Tigers ballclub never got over .500 during the season, but in a lame AL Central Division, finished nine games behind Minnesota...Considered to be the possible future "Face of the Franchise," Spencer Torkelson hit the most homers (31) and tallied the most RBI (94). Talented outfielder Kerry Carpenter walloped 20 home runs; however, a disappointing Javy Baez added just 9 jacks and 59 RBI...Starter Eduardo Rodriguez registered the most wins (13) and strikeouts (143)...Three Detroit pitchers, Matt Manning (6 2/3 innings) who was followed by Jason Foley and Alex Lange, combined to throw a no-hitter against Toronto, July 8th. The Tigers won the game, 2-0, at Comerica Park. Manning struck out five and walked three; Lange got save #13.
