The defending AL Central champions were within close quarters with the Twins for most of the year; they even had a peek at the top spot, leading the division by a half-game as late as July 9th. A 23-31 record the last two months held them out of the race while the first place Twins went 33-21 over that span. The Tigers clawed their way to second going 30-25. Three prime starters, Shane Bieber (sore elbow) and Triston McKenzie (elbow), both missed extended periods on the 60-day injured list. Zach Plesac was demoted to Triple A May 4th for ineffectiveness and later released June 4th. Four first year pitchers, Tanner Bibee (10 wins), Logan Allen, Gavin Williams, and Peyton Battenfield admirably filled in the starting rotation. Closer Emmanuel Clase led the majors in saves...Offensively, the Guardians were last in the A. L. in home runs (124). Jose Ramirez (80 RBI) hit the most (24) followed by Josh Naylor's 17. Naylor's 97 RBI led the team...Valiantly fighting off lingering health problems for years, skipper Terry Francona stepped down at the end of the year after 11 seasons with 921 wins and .549 winning percentage. This included one league pennant in 2016. Over his 23-year career managing three different teams (Philly, Boston and Cleveland), Francona's ballclubs had won 1,950 ballgames..."Bo" Naylor's complete name is Noah-Gibson James Washington Naylor. The brothers Naylor combined for 28 homers, 129 RBI, and an impressive .286 batting average.
